About the Harborview Injury Prevention and Research Center

Founded in 1985, the Harborview Injury Prevention and Research Center is a national injury control center as designated by the Centers for Disease Control. The HIPRC includes some of the pre-eminent injury researchers in the nation. Professionals with years of experience in injury prevention and community advocacy will be available for consultation.

More organizations are becoming active in injury prevention. However, many professionals and community activists aren't sure where or how to begin, or how to most effectively spend their limited resources. Usually getting a new program "off the ground" means months of time and frustration.

HIPRC can help you !

Harborview Injury Prevention Resource Center

The HIPRC has developed a comprehensive resource center to help your agency select, develop, and implement injury prevention programs.

• Professionals at the HIPRC will offer consultation and expertise

An on-site presentation with your agency, coalition, or conference and follow-up telephone consultation is available. Consultation includes:

How to select an injury topic

- Data collection
- Issues that lend themselves most easily to community-based efforts
- Education, legislation, and/or regulatory action

How to conduct an intervention program

- Building and maintaining coalitions
- Tapping "non-traditional" agencies that can lend support
- Determining goals and objectives
- Raising funds

How to evaluate the success of your project

• "Get The Job Done" a catalogue of evaluated education materials

Experts at the HIPRC have evaluated published materials for a variety of injury topics. Information includes how to obtain materials, their cost, appropriate audience, etc. Problems addressed include:

Asphyxia, Choking, Strangulation
All-Terrain Vehicles
Bicycle Safety and Helmets
Burns
Child Safety
Drowning
Falls
Farm Safety
Motor Vehicle Safety
Pedestrian Safety
Playground Safety
Poisonings
Violence

• "You Can Do It" a community guide for injury prevention

This easy-to-use guide gives detailed information on conducting a community-based injury prevention program. It contains fact sheets, information on how to accomplish a project, coalition building, role of the media, a speaker's outline, fundraising, plus other materials.
